The Wool Market.

The Prairie Farmer thinks "it is better not to ship wool cout at present. There is not sufficient wool in the west to supply the demand, and much better returns can be had by selling in the western market." So much for western woolen manufacturers. A Sure Remedy.

GOOD AND BAD BREEDING OF POULTRY.

There is great difference in the plans used by poultry breeders, even when they dealer to do the best they can for the comfort and well being of their fewls.

They are inexperienced and often fail in producing the desired results, such failures producing the desired results, such failures arising partly from badly constructed shelter, allowing the fowls to lorage for themselves anywhere and everywhere in all kinds of weather. Some claim to allow birds to rough it, keeps them, in the best health, makes them hardly, and in fact is the most natural for them.

Carolessness in the little details macrossey to good saming ment, such as the waste of food, feeding irregularly, unguarding them from exposure, is often the cause of the bad and unprofitable results experienced by those just starting in the business.

and unprofitable results experienced by those just starting in the business.

To be a good breeder is to be one who is willing, in part, at least, to give back an equivalent for what he receives from his properly tended and kindly treated stock. No man should keep on his premises any snimal which he is not disposed to care for properly, either by attending to it himself, or having it attended to by some one competent and faithful, and particularly in the care of fowls and chickens, as they being unstile to care for themselves, need to be proable to care for themselves, need to be pro-

The more care and attention is given to the indre cars and attention is given to keep them in good appearance and health, the more uniformly they are fed and watered, and the more cleanly they are kept in well lighted and ventilated quarters, the better returns they will make us for such attention.

et; a sure way to become disappointed and disgusted with ponitry breeding.

To become a successful breeder requires time, care, thought and study, as well as practice, and now is the time for our readers, who have not stready lone so, to begin. Select some good fowls of any breed which you may fancy, of pure blood, and start with one kind only, until you have learned their habits and how to manage them; have patience to learn well, you will be amply repaid for your trouble; and started upon a good foundation will be able to compete with those who have stready been long in the business.—Montreal Journal of Agriculture.

Sall for Trees and Vegetables. I will give you a sketch of my experience with the use of sait in the orehard and garden. Young fruit trees can be made to grow and do well in piaces where old trees have and do well in piaces where old trees have died, by sowing a pint of salt on the earth where they are to stand. After trees are set I continue to sow a pint of salt around each every year. I set twenty-five trees in sandy soil for each one of seven years and only enceeded in gebrig one to live, and that only produced twigs a few inches long in nine years. Last spring I sowed a pint of salt round it, and limbs grew from three to three and a half feet long. In the spring of 1877 I set out twenty-five trees, putting a pint of salt in the dirt used for filling, and then sowed a pint more on the surface, after each tree was set. All grew as if they had never been taken from the nursery. Last spring I set thirty more, treating them the same way, and they have grown very finely. The salt and they have grown very finely. The sait keeps away insects that Injure the roots, and renders the soil more capable of sustaining plant growth. plant growth.

In 1877 my wife had a garden forty feet square. It was necessary to water it nearly every day, and still the plants and flowers were very inferior in all respects. In 1878 I put half a barrel of brine and half a bushel of sait on the ground, and turned them under.

The consequence was that the plants were

A Word About Bees. The inmates of a hive are of three kinds. The queen which deposits all the eggs, the working bees, and the drones or male bees. The working bees are imperfectly developed females. About six days after birth the queen leaves the hive for fertilization by the drone, which dies after the not of copulation. One impregnation of the queen suffices to contrate through life, which scarges through operate through life, which averages three years. She will sometimes lay from 2,000 to
